

Who we are:

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences is the center of Fredonia's transformative education. The liberal arts and sciences teach skills and values essential for individuals to succeed in their professions, to participate in civic life, and to create meaningful lives. Through teaching, research, and applied learning, the College provides the intellectual, creative, and experiential foundation for students to discover how they can contribute to our complex world. The College houses the natural and social sciences, the humanities, and professional programs.

Why we are here:

- To maximize your potential so you can achieve the extraordinary
- To challenge you to imagine new solutions and identify emerging opportunities
- To support and mentor you as you reach for what your future may hold

What we do:

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences produces dynamic, independent individuals able to respond to the challenges of our world. Through close collaboration with faculty, deep engagement with challenging curricula, and community-centered research and internships, we empower students to:

- take ownership of their own learning
- prepare for success in a variety of professional fields
- develop habits of mind that enable them to continue to learn and adapt
- learn how to gather and evaluate information
- become analytical thinkers and effective communicators
- apply their creativity, knowledge, and skills to the needs of the communities
- act as agents and advocates of change

Where we are going:

We will continue to evolve and adapt to ensure that our curricula and the skills we teach remain relevant and enable our students to change the world.

Drafted, Summer 2016